

Tim, where are you now?

SAM ROSENTHAL & PROJEKT ARTISTS
a collaboration for Timothy Leary's 100th birthday

October 22 is Timothy Leary's 100th birthday; to commemorate, Sam Rosenthal recorded Tim, where are you now? an electronic space music/art rock collaboration. The album celebrates a pioneer of consciousness expansion using his own words accompanied by international artists exploring those same realms via their music.

With the permission and encouragement of Timothy Leary's son Zach and the Leary estate, the album's 13 tracks contain 4 spoken word "trips" with text excerpted and cut-up from Tim's first LSD and DMT experiences chronicled in his 1968 book High Priest. These voice+electronics segments serve as interstitial anchor trips that arise out of the music now and again.

It's high time to celebrate Leary's cultural contributions. He's a visionary who spent his life thinking about the mind, not just altering it but using it to its fullest potential to better tune into the universe. His influence remains so extensive and complex that 53 years after popularizing his catchphrase "turn on, tune in, drop out" inner exploration continues to be inspired by his work.

"Tim was a chieftain. He stomped on the terra, and he left his elegant hoof prints on all our lives."
